Country music stars rock Didsbury

Over 650 screaming country fans took in an exciting Canada Day concert

by Shawne Mohl

Two huge country names showed Didsbury a kickin' good time last Tuesday, July 1 as part of the Town's Canada Day celebrations.

Adam Gregory, of the Edmonton area, as well as Duane Steele of Red Deer - both nationally known Alberta solo artists - put on an unbelievable, exciting, energy filled show for three full hours, from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m.

The concert attracted over 650 screaming fans, a few hundred short of what the Town had hoped for. Earlier predictions had indicated that the Town was hoping for at least 1,000 concert goers.

Robert Wigg, the Town's acting CAO, has estimated that the Canada Day celebrations, although well worth it, came with a hefty price tag.

"Including the concert, it is around that $20,000 mark," Wigg said.

This includes all costs from bringing in the artists, to the rentals of portable toilets, to all concert related costs.

Concert goers paid $20 per ticket, and although the Town didn't break even, costs may be covered through a grant program available from the Province of Alberta.

Wigg says that the Town is in the process of applying for a grant, which may subsidize some costs for the concert, which may allow the Town to break even on the concert.

Wigg estimates that if the Town is successful in receiving grant dollars that they will receive anywhere from $12,000 to $14,000.

The Town's Mayor Dorothy Moore says that she thought the concert was incredible for Didsbury, and if it was possible to have a concert like this again in the future she would certainly attend.

"I thought the concert was incredibly professional as both artists were great," Moore said.

Moore mentioned how she especially liked Steele's inspiring attitude towards the crowd to keep them entertained.

"He (Steele) just had a very appealing smile, and just the way he looked down at the audience was great," Moore said.

The concert was originally booked to be held outdoors on the new stage built in the new Memorial Park, although due to weather concerns a change of venue occurred and the concert was held inside at the Memorial Complex.

Moore says that she would support a concert like this in the future again, as long as the taxpayers weren't forking over funds to subsidize the shortfalls.

"If this was something that Didsbury started to do I would support it, as long as the taxpayers weren't subsidizing the costs," Moore said.

that Didsbury started to do I would support it, as long as the taxpayers weren't subsidizing the costs."*

Accused killers make first court appearance

No pleas entered in murder of Crossfield man

by Dan Singleton

A Calgary transit worker and her boyfriend, charged with first degree murder in the shooting death of the woman's 39-year-old estranged husband near Crossfield last month, have made their first court appearance.

Nancy Lee McKinnon, 33, and Joseph George Bruso, 24, appeared before Judge Ian Kirkpatrick in Airdrie provincial court on Thursday morning.

Nicholas Ross Maradyn, 39,

the estranged husband of Nancy McKinnon, was found dead of a gun shot wound in his 1982 Datsun pickup just outside Crossfield early on the morning of June 14.

Neither accused spoke during Thursday's court appearance.

No pleas have been entered pending an August 14 court appearance.

Prosecutor Danny Elliott said no negotiations are underway with defence lawyers.

Bruso's defence lawyer, George Stewart, said he will seek the accused's release on bail next month.

Asked if he expects a not guilty plea to be entered, Stewart said, "I can't say at this point. We'll know more on the 14th."

Don Hadley, McKinnon's lawyer, said he will seek McKinnon's release on bail at some future date.

"We are now waiting to get more information from the Crown," said Hadley.

Calgary resident Leonard White, who says he has known McKinnon for 20 years, said she looked overly haggard during the court appearance.

Didsbury man jailed over drug charges

A 48-year-old man charged after RCMP raided a Didsbury residence twice last month has been jailed on drug charges.

James Thomas Washburn pleaded guilty in Didsbury provincial court on July 7 to charges of possession of a controlled substance for the purpose of trafficking and possession of a controlled substance.

Acting on a tip, police raided the home on June 3, finding a total of 66 grams of marijuana in 12 baggies, court heard. The drugs had a value of about $600, Crown prosecutor John Lee told Judge F. Cioni.

Again acting on a tip, police went back to the same residence on June 25, seizing a small amount of marijuana.

"The stuff is illegal and you know it," Judge Cioni told Washburn.

The judge sentenced Washburn to 60 days in jail on the trafficking charge, and 30 days on the possession charges, with the second sentence to run concurrent to the first.

"The stuff is illegal and you know it."

ABP welcoming new delegates

by Lindsay Jones

The Alberta Beef Producers board will be welcoming new delegates to specifically represent cattle feeders to the organization in November.

During a June meeting, the ABP approved the addition of an elected cattle feeder council member to the ABP board. ABP general manager Gary Sargent said the new addition is not a reaction to the mad cow situation, but has rather been in the works for some time.

"We felt it was a better way to represent their (cattle feeders') interests," Sargent said.

Thirteen cattle feeder council delegates will be elected this fall, as well as the regular zone elections held every year by the ABP. Of these 13 delegates, three will be elected by the council to sit on the ABP board.

Cattle feeders were previously represented by the Alberta Cattle Feeders Association, an association that is being discontinued and replaced by the new cattle feeder council.

"We (ABP) represent all 30,000 people that are in the cattle business, nationally and provincially," Sargent said.

"I really encourage cattle producers to get involved in their organization and their industry. The issues we are dealing with such as BSE, international trade and beef marketing require strong producer leadership if we are to successfully meet those challenges," said Darcy Davis, ABP Vice Chairman, in a press release.

Any Alberta producer who has sold cattle this year in his or her name and has paid a fee to ABP, or to another person on behalf of ABP, can run as a candidate.

Nominations for both the ABP delegates and the Cattle Feeder Council delegates are due by Aug. 31 at midnight.

SuperNet will bridge the gap

SuperNet will connect every community in Alberta on a high band network

by Lindsay Jones

The technological gap between rural communities and urban centres in Alberta will soon be bridged by the SuperNet.

The province of Alberta is investing $193 million to implement a new, state of the art network called the SuperNet.

It will bring a high-speed connection with multi-media capabilities to hospitals, government centres, libraries and schools.

"There is a disparity to get access to high speed connections in rural areas," said Vanda Killeen, communications co-ordinator for the Alberta government SuperNet project.

"We felt the public facilities deserved equal access to high speed connections," Killeen said.

People living in the 422 small towns, including Olds, Didsbury, and Sundre, will be linked to the SuperNet and will be able to hook up to the SuperNet at roughly the same cost as someone living in a city.

Axia NetMedia Corp. CEO Arthur Price said his company will be in charge of running and maintaining the SuperNet.

"We put power and roads into small communities. It's (the SuperNet) like a piece of superstructure that the small communities will be at a disadvantage without."

"The network will be able to handle any media in any direction," Price said.

This means that anyone who is connected to the network will be able to send and receive video, have telephone access, Internet connection, video conferencing capabilities and data transferring abilities.

For example, a medical specialist, who is not in Didsbury, will still be able to treat a patient. They will be able to hear the heart beat and see the condition of the patient, through new technology and the SuperNet. An MRI specialist will be able to read the results and give a diagnosis, without having to be in the medical facility where the test was done.

"You want to dream a little. All these things, if you could have the knowledge and not depend on it being local," Price said.

"The SuperNet makes it possible for specialists to choose to live in Olds (or Didsbury) when

"It's an economic development opportunity to export, and it's a service and quality enhancement"

- Arthur Price
CEO, Axia Net
Media Corp.

they never could before," he said.

"It brings way higher learning capabilities. Should a student in a small town have access to someone who can make probability sound interesting."

Yes. Skilled specialists can lend their knowledge, or even sell it, to people outside their geographical range making the new network a good export market. On the flip side, the Town of Didsbury will be able to give people a better look at what life is like in Didsbury if they are thinking of moving here. The town will also have access to health specialists, teachers and new business productivity, that lies outside the town boundaries.

"It's an economic development opportunity to export, and it's a service and quality enhancement to import," Price said.

Neighbouring municipality, the Town of Olds has signed an agreement with Bell West that allows the company to install a Meet-me centre in Olds. Bell West is spending $192 million to build the physical aspects of the network.

"It is going to be a great tool. I'm looking forward to seeing it in action," said Olds Mayor Norma Duncan.

Olds will be used as a Meet-me place, one of 27 base network communities through out the province that are bigger towns, or are between two major cities.

The Meet-me centre will be a point at which any carrier, like Telus or Shaw, can connect to the SuperNet to provide access to citizens of the towns. From this point the SuperNet will connect to smaller communities, such as Sundre, with a Point of Presence. The Point of Presence will be a physically smaller setup than the Meet-me point, but will have equal capabilities.

At both the Meet-me and Point of Presence sites, local carriers will be spurred into competition to keep prices low for consumers.

The actual cost of using the network will be slightly more than a normal Internet connection, but the price will vary depending on the package the consumer buys from the carrier, Price said.

The network is capable of offering guaranteed capacity, and a quality of service features.

At the moment, the Internet runs on a best effort capacity, and that can often cause the Internet to slow down during high-use times, the guaranteed capacity feature will eliminate this.

The Internet also struggles with downloading time sensitive material, like watching a live news report on screen. But the SuperNet will be able to prioritize downloaded items, through the quality of service feature so time sensitive material runs as real time.

Even though Alberta is on the leading edge with this new network, other provinces, like Saskatchewan have a similar set up.

"But Alberta is more distinct," Killeen said.

But no matter the differences SuperNet is globally compatible.

What a Canada Day, 'eh?

Shawne Mohl

Hat's off to the organizers of the Town's Canada Day celebrations. What a fun-filled, entertaining day for residents of all ages.

While growing up in my hometown of Drumheller - Canada Day was always a huge celebration full of fireworks, concerts, face painting, cotton candy, and all that good stuff. Although, after leaving Drumheller, after graduating from high school, it seemed as if no other community cared to celebrate our nation's birthday. But, that was until I came to Didsbury and started covering the happenings in this very vibrant, busy, and enjoyable community.

Not only did they wish Canada a happy 136th birthday, but they held the best darn party in the entire County.

Between the raids of people attending all of the special events from the children's bike parade, or the face painting, or the fireworks just to mention a few things, the day was completely enjoyable.

What I liked about the celebrations most was that there was something for everyone, of every age to enjoy. There was swimming for the younger residents, music for people of all ages, the bike parade for the children which provided entertainment for the adults, to just an entire happy, and enjoyable atmosphere for everyone.

What probably made Didsbury's Canada Day celebrations just that much better, was that the Town hired Duane Steele and Adam Gregory to both perform live. The concert kicked off at 8 p.m. and for $20 a ticket, concert goers had three hours of high quality entertainment from two of Canada's top country artists.

But, once again, I have to point out; it may have just been fluke that Steele and Gregory were picked to perform in Didsbury, but it gave the younger concert goers an opportunity to enjoy Gregory's music, while for the middle aged concert goers they probably enjoyed Steele's music a little more - although, both artists were extremely professional and enjoyable to watch.

The concert has most likely run the Town into the red somewhat, but if Didsbury could maintain these types of Canada Day celebrations, eventually the concerts would pay for themselves. It is always the first year of any type of event to try and get people to come out.

But, all in all between every event that the Town planned, with a lot of volunteer help, everyone must be congratulated for a job well done.

You certainly made me feel proud to be not only a Canadian, but a Didsburian!

Campaign launched for infrastructure investments

by Dorothy Moore

Canadian municipal leaders are launching a national grassroots campaign to secure a long-term federal commitment to municipal infrastructure.

After the Annual Conference of the Federation of Canadian Municipalities (FCM) in Winnipeg, it has been determined that Canada's municipalities have vowed to turn up the pressure on the Government of Canada to commit adequate, predictable and sustained funds for infrastructure investments over the next 10 years.

In 2002, Finance Minister Paul Martin spoke to FCM about a new deal for municipalities. This year, John Manley spoke of the budget providing just a downpayment on future contributions.

According to the Canadian Taxpayers Federation, Ottawa resumed only 2.5%, or $118 million of the $4.7 billion collected in federal gasoline taxes in 2001-2002 in transfers for road and highway development. To add insult to injury, 99% of that amount was spent east of Ontario.

Municipal officials across the country are stepping up efforts at putting infrastructure investments at the top of the national action agenda.

We will be speaking to MPs, chambers of commerce, small business associations, consumers and other citizens groups in each locality to get them on-side.

Our frustration stems from the $57 billion gap that has developed between growing needs and municipal responsibilities for road repair, transportation systems, water treatment and safe neighborhoods and the financial resources at our disposal.

This gap is growing at the rate of $2 billion a year or $5 1/2 million per day. On average, municipal infrastructure has reached almost 80% of its service life, with 59% more than 50 years old and 30% more than 80 years old.

I will tell Myron Thompson, our local MP how vital infrastructure investments are in maintaining the quality of life in our community and in our country. And I will be asking for his support in taking this matter to the Government of Canada. They must take a stand on this issue. Our fellow citizens demand no less.

Specifically, local governments are calling on the Government of Canada to speed up the federal contribution to infrastructure investments by committing the $3 billion announced in the 2003 Budget to be spent over the next three years. They are also urging the Government of Canada to establish a long term (ten-year) infrastructure program with a minimum 5-year funding commitment.

"A complete surprise"

by Margaret Fradley

Recently our daughter and husband found it necessary to clean their carpets. My son-in-law went out and rented a carpet cleaner. With the machine there was a box containing the necessary parts for the carpet cleaner.

Our enterprising young grandson, now two-and-a-half is always discovering new ways to entertain himself, and this time was to be no exception.

After using the cleaner, my son-in-law returned to the rental store and opened up the box for the attachments to show the clerk everything was intact, but then came the surprise!! The box was filled up with 'dinky toys'.

My embarrassed son-in-law had no need to try to explain his dilemma, for everyone had just burst out laughing. If laughter is good like medicine, that family should be very healthy!!

However, everything turned out well, after the dinky toys were restored to their proper place and the attachments to the carpet cleaner found and returned. It never hurts to check out things twice!!

Politicians attitudes unjust, unfair

Dear editor,

Upon reading the June 25, 2003 newspaper, I came across an unnerving article titled, "Local politicians against same-sex marriages." The article stated, and I quote, "For same sex couples in west central Alberta," they won't have much luck going to their local politicians to lobby support for their right to be wed."

I want to start by saying that I fully understand churches, and organized religions being reluctant to marry gay people. I think that is their right.

The definition of religion is, "A system of faith and worship," and obviously the bounds of the system are their choice. But being legally married by a Justice of the Peace is completely exempt from religion, and should include anybody regardless of sex, race or religion as long as both parties involved both agree that they exclusively want to be together. The definition of legal marriage aside from religious marriage should be, "The union of two people to the exclusion of all others."

I myself used to be against same sex relationships. I even used to make fun of people who were gay. That was until I found out that my own mother is a lesbian. At first I felt shame. Being a teenager in a small town I dreaded the thought that anybody would find out. What would they think? What would they say behind our backs? But I quickly realized that I didn't care what people thought. My mother is the exact same person she was when she was living a straight life, strong, beautiful, and fun to be with. The only thing that has changed about her is who she shares her life with, and I hardly think that is anybody's business.

I used to be very closed minded. I thought that the world was meant to work in a certain way. It made sense. I thought that a man and a woman were supposed to be together and have children, to do their part in the procreation of the human race. But procreation is not an issue anymore. This world is disgustingly overpopulated with humans. We mass-produce, mass-consume and mass-pollute. There are thousands upon thousands of children in this world who have no family, and yet everybody is determined to have their own child. We should be finding parents for existing children before creating new life, and looking at ways to reduce the population overall. This is why I don't understand the extreme emphasis on a man and a woman being together for the purpose of creating new life.

I have noticed that a lot of homosexual couples are adopting children. I think this is a very good thing because the best homes for kids are the homes where they are wanted. Adoption is a voluntary process, much unlike a lot of straight couples who accidentally become pregnant and just have to deal with it. If a couple is adopting a child, they have obviously given it a lot of thought. I am in no way saying that homosexual couples are better at raising children than straight couples. I just think that if you are raised in a home with parents who are caring, loving, open minded and non-judgmental you can't go wrong. The emphasis shouldn't be on whether the parents are male or female, it should be on whether or not they are good parents.

It's funny. We teach our children not to judge a book by its cover. We teach them that everybody is equal in God's eyes, and that they should be understanding and forgiving of others yet we label a teenage boy with a blue mohawk a punk, we label a kid wearing all black and a spiked collar a freak, we secretly snicker when an overweight person walks by, and the list goes on forever. We seldom remember that all of us have a stereotype on the outside and we seldom remember that real beauty is on the inside. We all have downfalls and we all have differences. We have to learn to appreciate and embrace these differences for the better of mankind.

When so many people are hypocritical in this way, we are basically teaching our children not to judge people, as long as they are exactly like us. What a horrible message to send to children, and to each other. When are we going to start taking our own advice? When are we going to start saying hi to the kid with the blue hair? When are we going to smile at the "bum" on the street? When are we going to realize that things like race, social status, sex, age and sexual preference are irrelevant in the big picture? If you expect people to have respect for the way you wish to live your life, you have to have respect for the fact that other people may not wish to live their life the same way. If everybody were cut from the same cookie cutter this world would be a boring place to live. It is our diversity and our differences that make us who we are, and it is this diversity that makes this world and especially Canada, an interesting and beautiful place to live.

To the 2,384 people who responded to MP Myron Thompson's survey and said that they are against same sex marriages, I would like to tell you that there is a term for people like you. It's called homophobia. It's the same type of feeling that makes you scared of the guy in the spiked collar, you are scared of it because you don't understand it. But, even if you don't understand it, take part in it, or condone it, in the very least I would like to ask how does it affect you? Why do you go out of your way to pass judgement on issues that have nothing to do with you? Why can't you trust God has a plan for them as he does for you? If you are against same sex marriage, you are obviously not in a same sex relationship, and obviously don't associate with gay people. So why not just leave them alone?

If you don't want to be gay, then don't be gay, but leave everyone else out of it. Gay people don't preach to us that we should be gay, so why preach to them that they should be straight? I don't know about you, but I've got more positive things to do with my life than to go out of my way and quote "work hard" to pass judgement on other people. I hope for your sakes that someone who is very close to you comes out to be gay, so you can learn to accept people for who they are, instead of who you want them to be.

Sincerely, Jackie Lane

Local high school band to play with the "Big Boys" at Stage 13

Four local Didsburians will have the opportunity of a life time as they play in front of nearly 3,000 screaming fans

by Shawne Mohl

To most teenagers watching Much Music on television or listening to a CD of big rock band names like Our Lady Peace, 3 Doors Down, or Swollen Members is as close as they will ever get to meeting the members of these famous bands.

But, this isn't the case for four local teenagers who are part of a Didsbury band called, "Crisnd."

Local's Steve McMullen, 17, Warren Steckly, 18, Joel Couture, 15, and Nick Kurtz, 16, all members of the local band Crisnd, have made it past the judges and are preparing to take to the stage at Stage 13 this weekend in Camrose, where they will have the opportunity to meet these bands and more.

Stage 13 is a four-day outdoor music festival, incorporating international veteran rockers, alternative music stars and local talent making it the event of the summer that every music lover looks forward to.

The local students, who are all students at Didsbury High School, entered a band competition through a company called, Axe Music.

Axe Music held a high school band competition throughout the Province, where it was literally the battle of the bands for one of the top four positions to play at Stage 13 in front of over 3,000 screaming fans.

Axe Music first came to Didsbury a few months ago where five local bands, including Crisnd, went head to head trying to earn the top spot for their school, which landed Crisnd on top taking them onto Regionals.

At Regionals, held in Calgary, Crisnd competed against 12 of the top bands from southern Alberta (Red Deer south).

Of the 12 bands Crisnd landed one of the top two positions, allowing them the opportunity to play at Stage 13 - a once in a lifetime opportunity for any high school band, and one that all of the members of the band are ecstatic about.

"There were a lot of really talented bands (at Regionals), so for us to get picked it's a real privilege," said McMullen.

Steckly explained that the bands original goal was to just make it past the school competition and have the opportunity to at least play at Regionals in Calgary with the other talented bands from Southern Alberta.

By having the opportunity to play at one of the Nation's most popular concerts, held basically in our own backyard, the local boys are hoping that this will give them even more opportunities.

"We are hoping that by attending Stage 13 and having the opportunity to play there that it will open up a lot of doors for us," Steckly said. "(Stage 13) is basically the Canadian Woodstock."

Crisnd has been together for approximately three years, originally started by McMullen, Steckly and Kurtz, with Couture being the newest member to the band, joining approximately three months ago.

Each of the members of the band play a vital role in putting out their high quality rock. McMullen plays guitar and lead sings, Steckly plays base and sings back-up vocals, Couture is lead guitar, and Kurtz offers the base for the band by playing the drums.

The name Crisnd has a very simple, yet unique explanation. "We basically look at it that we have been Crisnd into the music industry," Steckly explained.

Crisnd will be one of four amateur bands playing in Camrose this weekend. They are booked to appear on stage this Saturday afternoon between 2 and 2:30 p.m.

"We set the goal to make it to Regionals and we made it. Then we set the goal to make it to Stage 13 and we made it. We are not sure what our next goal is, but we are very pleased so far," Steckly explained.

Couture and Kurtz were short on words, but expressed their excitement to play in Camrose this weekend, saying they are looking forward to this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

The songs which Crisnd will be performing have all been written - both lyrics and music - by members of the band. McMullen explained that the band has a song list of over 22 songs that they play on a regular basis.

Aside from making it to Stage 13 the local boys have been quite busy performing at different social events such as graduations, parties, and other social events. Over the past two months they have even played at the Skydive Centre and other popular concert destinations.

Crisnd is available for bookings, and do have a set fee. To book Crisnd contact McMullen at 335-4789.

Stage 13 kicks off this Friday and runs until Sunday in Camrose. There are still some tickets available.

William Edward Blore, (Bill) passed away on June 30, 2003. He was 90 years old and had lived a long and very productive life. He was a watch maker, jeweler, carpenter, inventor, builder, painter, bee keeper, Real Estate Agent, barn painter, gardener, lay minister, camp director and chairman but mostly, beginning in 1931, he was an educator who taught in one room country schools, town schools and big city High schools.

In 1952 he returned to Summer School and became an Industrial Arts Instructor and he taught with the County of Mountain View in Didsbury, Rosebud and Olds. By 1963 he was Director of Central Alberta Industrial Arts and serving on the Industrial Arts Specialist Council. He taught Industrial Arts at Lindsey Thurber Composite High in Red Deer and then at Queen Elizabeth senior and junior High in Calgary until he retired.

In 1971 his Peers voted him "Man of the Year."

I met him at Ferrybank School, west of Ponoka when I was 7 years old, about 4 feet tall and beginning grade 4. He was 31 years old and six feet five. We eyed one another warily and were not quite sure how to handle the situation. He believed, quite rightly, that seven is too young for grade four. "Are you sure you don't mean grade two?" But I had the Report cards to prove it and he couldn't very well demote me so we made the best of the situation. I could read and spell very well, my vocabulary and general knowledge was good, but math skills were borderline, artwork awful and my handwriting was (and still is) almost totally illegible.

Mr. Blore was my teacher for grades four, five, six and seven. At least once a month he pulled a chair next to mine, held my hand in his and guided me through the ovals, loops and uprights that were supposed to improve my handwriting. It was hopeless but he never gave up and even as he despaired of my handwriting and art he grinned when I used enormous words and always had me read my compositions aloud to the class. We were supposed to make sentences using the words from the weeks spelling list. I arranged my sentences to tell a funny story and then watched surreptitiously to see if he would smile as he corrected my work.

Highlight of my week was to see VG at the top of my current essay. Always in green ink and always in his own exemplary handwriting.

One September we returned to School to find that we had chemical inside toilets. Most of us didn't have that luxury at home but Mr. Blore had installed boys in the basement, girls upstairs in the cloakroom. It was almost miraculous. We had the best Christmas Concert in the County, we had an ice slide like a miniature luge run, and a skating rink that he flooded weekends with a pump. He was a pioneer in the phonics program, we had Home Ec. and Shop classes, and with Mr. and Mrs. Blore and the ladies of the local Women's Institute we had a winter hot lunch program. He brought a typewriter to the school and the big kids learned to type, he subscribed to a U of E Extension program and borrowed the books we wanted to read, once a week he read aloud to us, Great Expectations, Ivanhoe, Ben Hur. Our school yard had flowerbeds and walkways lined in painted stones.

Bills wife Mildred became ill and he cared for her until she passed away. In April of 2001 he married Lenora Trodden and he and Lenora had two very happy years. We visited them, wrote often and enjoyed them both very much.

I know there have been, and still are, teachers who have led, inspired, taught and set an example, teachers who have made a difference, given more than anyone has a right to expect and made great and lasting impressions on generations of young minds. But not many are gifted the way Bill Blore was. I count him as one of my blessings.

DIDSBURY & DISTRICT FIRE AUTHORITY

Didsbury's fire department keeping busy responding to calls

by Tyrone Patten

As you all know, I have no formal training as a writer. I do, however, know that you should always be sure of your facts and double-check your sources. Before my last article I checked to be sure that I had everyone's last name spelled correctly but I forgot to double check the spelling of their first names. As a result I owe Esther an apology for spelling her name wrong. I'm sorry Esther.

Last month we said goodbye to two members. Luke Geleynse took a job in Ontario and James Rylance is driving truck. We will miss them and we wish them well.

On the evening of June 11, 2003 Brett Gole of Shell Canada presented Chief Mousseau with a huge donation.

This will be used to buy a generator to put on the new rescue unit when it arrives.

Although the final total is not yet known, we had a very successful Cabaret in May. Based on what we've heard, everyone that was there had a great time!

The ball team still hasn't put a mark in the win column but they are having a good time anyway. They have suffered a few minor injuries and have had several games interrupted due to calls. One thing to celebrate though was the in-park home run hit by Danny Schmick. That roused the whole team to a round of high fives. I'm sure there will be cause to celebrate again in the future as there is still time left for the team to hone their skills.

Since last report we have responded to 12 calls. These were:

Ambulance Assists - 3
MVA's - 3
Structure Fires- 1
Vehicle Fires- 1
Mutual Aid- 1
Alarm, no fire- 1

The following little bit from the archives was found in a collage from 1967. It was originally written specifically to male firefighters because at the time there were no women in the department but with many women in the fire service it doesn't lose anything with a few changes.

I married the right person. A volunteer firefighter's spouse. No sleep for me as I wait, and nightmares for them when they come back.. Thinking of the horror of the fire.

They don't get out of a warm bed for personal glory...God knows it's not money!

Just a little added proof - as if I need it - that I married the right person.

They'll bring back the sickening odor of smoke and char...their pillowcase will need washing, but that won't matter...if only it doesn't have to happen tomorrow night...or any night!

Like I said, it doesn't lose a thing by being applicable to both men and women. Until next time, I hope you all keep safe and happy.

Focus on the Family

QUESTION: You have recommended that parents be willing to apologize to their kids when they are wrong and to "stay on your child's team" even when it's a losing team. This is difficult for me because my son is in full-blown rebellion. He's using drugs, flunking his classes and giving us fits at home. Is there a time to forget the nicey-nice stuff and get tough with a teenager?

DR. DOBSON: No doubt about it. There are moments when it is appropriate to apologize, accommodate, compromise and negotiate. But there comes a time to draw a line in the dirt and say, "Enough is enough!" For youngsters who have tyrannized their families, their parent's willingness to "forgive and forget" repeatedly is interpreted as weakness. Appeasement, as we know, is never successful in pacifying a bully. It only makes him or her more angry and disrespectful.

Behavioral research has now validated that statement. Dr. Henry Harbin and Dr. Denis Madden, working at the University of Maryland's Medical School, studied the circumstances that surround violent attacks on parents by teenagers. They found that "parent battering" usually occurs when "one or both parents have abdicated the executive position" and left no one in charge -- no one, that is, except the violent child. Rebellious, mean-spirited teenagers respect strength and disdain weakness -- especially that borne of love. Harbin and Madden also observed that "an almost universal element" in the parent-battering cases was the parents' unwillingness to admit the seriousness of the situation. They did not call the police, even when their lives were in danger; they lied to protect their children and they continued to give in to their demands. Parental authority had collapsed.

One father was almost killed when his angry son pushed him down a flight of stairs. He insisted that the boy did not have a bad temper. Another woman was stabbed by her son, missing her heart by an inch. Nevertheless, she continued letting him live at home.

Drs. Harbin and Madden concluded that appeasement and permissiveness are related to youthful violence, and that both parents should lead with firmness. "Someone needs to be in charge," they said. I agree wholeheartedly with these psychiatrists. Having been appointed by President Ronald Reagan to serve on the National Advisory Commission to the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention, I am very familiar with the pattern of youthful violence. I've seen cold-blooded killers who were no more than 13 years of age. Many of them came from homes where authority was weak or nonexistent. It is a formula for cranking out very tough criminals at an early age.

When you are faced with a potentially violent situation at home, you must weigh your options and take decisive action. The organization Tough Love, founded by Phyllis and David York, has been helpful to parents whose backs are to the wall. Tough Love is dedicated to helping out-of-control parents regain the upper hand in their own homes. Their basic philosophy is one of confrontation that is designed to bring a belligerent teenager to his or her senses. You might give them a call. To do nothing is to risk the unthinkable.

QUESTION: How do you feel about year-round schools in areas where overcrowding makes them advantageous?

DR. DOBSON: I know there are administrative advantages to year-round schools, especially since the facilities are not standing idle two months a year as they are under the current system. Nevertheless, many parents say year-round schools are very hard on them. Siblings attending different schools may have their vacations at different times, making it impossible for families to take trips together. It is also more difficult to coordinate children's time off with parents' schedules. In short, year-round schools represent just one more hardship on families seeking to do fun and recreational things together each year.

Local resident garners prestigious award

Didsbury resident, Joel Hibbard has been honoured by receiving a prestigious provincial/Territorial entrance award from the Canada Millennium Scholarship Foundation. The cash award of up to $16,000 to be used toward the cost of studies at any Canadian university or college this fall.

The Millennium Excellence Award Program recognizes community involvement, leadership, innovation and academic excellence. It also provides an incentive for many of our brightest students here in Alberta and nationwide. Joel attends Olds Koinonia Christian School.

Living in a rural area, Joel became aware of the number of residents in his community who must travel great distances to the nearest cancer clinic for treatment.

Seeing an opportunity for his school to make a difference Joel created a fundraising campaign that collected $1,300 to be distributed to those cancer patients who would most benefit from assistance with transportation costs. He is co-leader of his school's Samaritan's Purse Shoebox Campaign and a volunteer kitchen-worker and server with the Mustard Seed Homeless Shelter in Calgary. Athletics are a large part of Joel's life, and he has distinguished himself as a soccer player, middle distance runner and provincially ranked snowboarder-cross competitor. An honours student, he intends to study commerce at university.

The Honourable Tommy Banks, Senator Alberta, says he is "pleased to congratulate Joel and the other talented and caring laureates who are this year's entrance award recipients."

Mount View Lodge news

by Annie Caush

Hope all are enjoying our lovely summer weather. Our grounds have never looked better. Drop by and walk around some evening.

We have had several special activities. A number of residents were able to go to Sundre for their Parade and lunch at the Foothills Lodge. We had the June Birthday Party last week. We were entertained with lively music performed by Mike Kosik and Friend. Thanks so much for coming again.

Those celebrating June Birthdays are Kay Brown, Neva Miller, Barbara Reid and Harry Repp. Best wishes all!

Just before the close of school a Grade 4 class came again and entertained us with songs and readings. Such a special class! They gave us each a Canada Day card and a tiny Canadian flag. Thanks so much! We hope you all have a wonderful summer.

We had our Annual Family Picnic last week. Our 102 year old resident poetess, Gladys Smith has written about it and we are pleased to submit her poem as our "thank you" to all for a wonderful evening.

Wasn't that a grand picnic at the Lodge of Mount View.

With families, old friends and new friends too

Raining on the outside but inside really bright

The decorations were such a lovely sight

The food (oh my!) it was really great

Our guests brought pies, fruit and cakes

Donna made a diabetic pie for us few

It was so good so we enjoyed it too

Everything tasted so good

We would have eaten more (if we could)

Elaine, Wendy, staff and other helpers

Did a superb job you see

Everything well organized you'll agree

Dr. Wray entertained with his box of magic

We old kids wondered how he did it

Maybe he could teach us (Well Perhaps)

We gave him lots of laughs and claps

So thanks to everyone who came.

Maybe next year we will do it again

From all the Seniors at Mount View Lodge.

Rosebud Valley Campground offers a home away from home

Flo and Don Freeman
Campground Managers, Rosebud Valley Campground

Rosebud Valley Campground is more than just a faithful landmark completing the scenic drive up the hill towards town. Travelers across North America have come to know the facility as a tried and trusted reprieve from their long journey across Canada for their summer vacation.

"We see a lot of people coming here that belong to the Trailer Club," says Don Freeman who manages the campground with his wife Flo. "...They're a group of people that get together with their fifth wheels and motorhomes and meet at various campgrounds to visit together, have potlucks, just spend time together and have fun."

Freeman says many of the travelers they see stopping by to stay at the campsite are those making their way across the country. "We see a lot of people either on their way up to Alaska from the States or those coming down from Alaska to visit the warmer climates."

This is the second season the Freeman's have been managing Rosebud Park Campground; a job that entails much more than one might think. "We take care of most all the maintenance of the campsite as well as reservations, registrations and basic upkeep," Don Freeman explains adding the Town-owned amenity does offer some assistance. "If we're ever in a real bind or I need help with something, the Town workers will step in and help us. It's a good arrangement that way."

officially opens mid-April and stays open until the end of September.

While the upkeep of the campground can, at times, seem overwhelming, the Freemans believe their hard work is worthwhile and attribute most of the repeat business to the clean, generously spaced sites and quality service. "We don't have full hook-ups, but we do have electricity at each site and water available," explains Freeman adding there's also fully serviced washrooms available with showers, free firewood, a playground for the children, cookhouse facility, and Gazebo.

Anyone wishing to reserve a site at the campsite can call the Freemans at 335-8578.

Time running out on Didsbury Lion Club's playhouse raffle

Remember the joy you felt as a child of having a place to call your very own? It might have been a treehouse, a secret corner in your Mom's garden...or, if you were lucky enough, your very own playhouse!

For children in the Didsbury area, this dream could soon become a reality thanks to the Lions Club Playhouse raffle going on now until the week of August 15th.

"The draw will be made at the annual Fair and Rodeo," says long-standing Lions Club Member, Fred Morrish.

The playhouse stands approximately 12 feet high and comes completely sided with three windows, a door, shingled roof and spacious 12 square foot interior with table and two chairs. It is suitable for either boy or girl and fits well in most backyards. "Anyone that wants to see it can stop by the vacant lot next to

Didsbury Lions Club

On the Grow. That's where it will be situated until the Fair," says Morrish.

The playhouse was constructed solely by Lions Club members and is one of many fund-raisers the Lions typically hold during the course of the year. Others include the Annual Lions Club Auction, Food Bank Drive, and numerous hot dog and hamburger sales at events such as Show and Shine and the Fair and Rodeo.

Money raised through raffles and activities held throughout the year, Morrish explains, will be channeled into a long standing commitment the Club has made to various projects in the community.

Anyone wishing to purchase tickets for the playhouse can do so by stopping by Fountain Tire, Vanda Agencies or AG Foods. For more information, call Fred Morrish at 335-3838.

Dave Krom's summer job puts wheels in "Mow-tion"

Dave Krom knows how to achieve his goals in three easy steps - set the choke, pull the cord and mow. It's part of a recipe for success the 16-year-old is using this summer with his company, "Dave's Mowing Service" and one which has generated him enough revenue so far to purchase a truck.

Actively involved in the landscaping industry since the age of 12, Krom has quickly become familiar with a wide variety of jobs and equipment and knows how to make the most of virtually any yard or garden. "I used to work for Prestige Landscaping in Calgary since I was 12 and learned how to use my machinery right and how to use it safely," Krom explains. "...I have the capability to rototill, mow, trim, and rake and my sister (Crystal) does the gardening."

The cost for Dave's Mowing

Service is approximately $20.00 - depending on the size lawn you have. "That's about average," says Krom. "It usually takes me half an hour to 45 minutes to complete...gardening is extra."

Word of Krom's excellent service has spread. "I have five contracts now that I'm working on a regular basis. A lot of it was word of mouth or they'd see me drive by with my lawn tractor and trailer and ask me to work..."

So far all of Krom's customers are local residences, although he does accept commercial jobs as well. "I'm still taking in work, so if anyone needs some work done, just give me a call," says Krom who is working towards his next goal of owning a dirtbike.

Dave's Mowing Service can be reached by calling either 335-9349 or 335-2052.

He is geared up to take on any job, just give him a call!

REVIEW EXCLUSIVE

Getting to know country music legend, Duane Steele

by Shaune Mohl

Climbing his way from small town Alberta to the top 30 charts in country music, Duane Steele has had a very busy and successful music career for the past 22 years.

Steele, now a Red Deer resident, recently took to the stage at the Didsbury Memorial Complex where he played to a crowd of over 650 music fans as part of the Town's Canada Day celebrations.

What has helped Steele become so successful in his career? Well, as Steele explained in an exclusive interview with, The Didsbury Review, he says he doesn't know what has helped him become successful, but thinks his hard work has had a lot to do with it.

"If you want to make a career out of music - you have to stay at it and you have to work at it like a full time job."

The solo artists has been very successful, and obviously his career has paid well taking him all over the world and becoming one of Canada's top male vocalists.

Steele says that unlike some artists he has always been persistent and has never thought about giving up music as his career.

A native to Alberta, Steele started out his singing days at the young age of 9, where he and three of his cousins started up a band called, "Northern Sunrise."

Steele's small town band started playing at local festivals, weddings, and became some of the best entertainment in his hometown of Hines Creek, located in the Peace region in Northern Alberta.

Steele knew almost instantly when he started performing in front of audiences that he wanted to make a life long career of performing, music writing, and singing to country music fans.

In 1984 Steele joined up with a few other small town country music artists who wanted to make it big as well, and that they did.

In 1984 the group's band called, "Rock 'n' Horse", travelled the Canadian country music and club circuits for eight consecutive years, none of which bothered Steele because aside from music his next love is for travelling.

"That is one of the things that I love about this business - I get to travel so much and see and do so much - it's great," Steele said.

In the early 90's

Rock'n'Horse dissolved, which led Steele in a whole new direction, forcing him to leave his native land and head south.

In 1993 Steele accepted a contract in Nashville with Warner Chappell, where he was a solo songwriter.

Steele worked in Nashville for five years, and after feeling the itch and need to come home he returned to Canada to pursue a full time singing career, which hasn't touched down since it's launch when Steele arrived back in Alberta.

In 1996 Steele released his debut album, "P.O. Box 423," which the name of his album has it's own story behind it.

"It's quite simple," Steele said, with a chuckle. "It was my (mail) box number in Nashville."

Steele saw his first singles from his first album go Top 5 on the charts, including his first #1 hit, which is still popular, "Anita Got Married."

Steele explained that he enjoys playing to crowds, like the one in Didsbury, almost more than the larger crowds because he feels he can touch the audience easier, and he has a better time himself.

"I appreciate this sort of crowd very much," Steele said.

Of the 18 songs which Didsbury heard last July 1st, they were mostly all wrote by Steele himself.

Steele says that he writes most of his songs himself, and if they are not written by him he normally has a part in the song somehow.

How exactly does one come to write songs? Well, to Steele, he says it's simple.

"Some of it can be very personal, some are based on the events in my life or of a friend, or sometimes it's just from a phrase I heard on the radio or saw in a movie," Steele said.

Steele says that he has never thought about turning his back on music, and feels fortunate that he has been able to make a career out of something that he loves so much.

"It's just what I have always done - ever since I can remember," Steele said.

Steele is preparing to release his next solo album in February, so encourages all of his fans to prepare for another quality album.

A million times I've needed you, A million times I've cried, If love could have saved you, Dad never would have died. You if I could have a lifetime wish, One wish that would come true, I'd wish today with all my heart, For yesterday and you. But since I know this can't come true, I'll do the next best thing, I'll simply spend the day with you, Just remembering."
